Hands across the sea—Barre to Aberdeen.

After all, Quiney always yelps before she is hurt.

Boston & Maine stock is on the right track—going up.

The U. S. government picked Vermont for raising Morgan horses, thus adding to Vermont's reputation as a state of fine horses.

We notice that the town of Chelsea is getting ready for Old Home week the coming summer. Chelsea has formed a good habit.

Boston hears that Mayor Fitzgerald is again a candidate. Impossible! How can a man be again a candidate when he always is a candidate?

Secretary Garrison says Boston could be captured by the enemy, forgetting that Boston already has been captured—both National and American leagues.

It is hard to keep the name down. Notice how frequently the name of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt—Franklin D.—appears in the press these days amid the awful silence from Oyster Bay.

There seems to be quite general belief that in the resignation of Newman K. Chaffee of Rutland from the board of penal institutions the state of Vermont has lost a capable official. Let us hope that there will be no further loss of like nature.

An automobile hit a young boy in Rutland Sunday and they couldn't find the boy to learn his name. Which may be considered an outcome at variance with the usual order when such vehicles collide with human beings and slay them. However, the next accident won't be so fortunate in result.

While her husband is running the government, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson proposes to do a good work by cleaning up the slums in the capital city; and she couldn't be engaged in better work during the next four years—or three and three-quarters years, for we are reminded that President Wilson has been in the chair already nearly three months.

We wonder if the medical men of Vermont have appreciated to the fullest the opportunities for brushing-up in their profession which have been offered in the post-graduate course at the University of Vermont during the past few weeks. The opportunities afforded have been unusual in Vermont and, in fact, unusual outside of the large cities, where there are many hospital facilities; and the medical men of the state ought to have appreciated them enough to attend the lectures and see the clinics and witness the operations. This post-graduate instruction is worth a great deal to the state provided it is taken advantage of by any considerable number of the physicians.

The announcement that a movement is being started on the west side of the state to erect a memorial to the late David J. Foster, representative in Congress, admirable as the proposal is, leads to the question whether Vermont has not neglected some of its more famous men such as the late Justin S. Morrill, United States senator and father of the Morrill act, so-called. To be sure, there is a Morrill hall at the state university in Burlington, but there is no memorial from public subscription erected to honor Vermont's "grand old man." One could name others whose prominence and whose position in the affections of the people of the state would seem to demand that some public recognition be made of them and their services to the state.

VERMONT AND THE RED CROSS MOVEMENT.

That general confidence is reposed in the American Red Cross society is shown by the fact that people of the United States entrusted $1,750,000 to the organization for the purpose of aiding the flood sufferers in the states of the middle West some weeks ago—entrusted it with the firm conviction that the great sum would be devoted only to the purposes for which it was subscribed and that it would be applied to meet the greatest need. It is fortunate that there is such an organization as the Red Cross society, in which confidence can be placed and by agency of which a great deal of suffering may be alleviated. It is one of the finest organizations in existence at the present time, and it merits most cordial support, not only in times of great emergency such as the great western flood, but in times of little stress when it is necessary merely to keep the administration in good working order.

From officials of the Vermont branch of the Red Cross, we learn that there has been a considerable decrease in membership of late and that there is urgent need for others to join in order to make the branch an effective agent in gathering funds for relief of suffering. Vermont did not do as much as it ought to have done during the recent emergency, raising less than three thousand dollars for the people impoverished by the flood. However, there were notable exceptions, most notable of which was Brattleboro, which raised more than one-fourth of the total amount subscribed in Vermont. Coming next, we believe, was Barre, with an amount considerably smaller than Brattleboro's but probably representing far more givers having more slender means and, therefore, being less able to contribute than many of the contributors in Brattleboro. Then there were other communities which did well. But as a whole the state fell short of its possibilities. To awaken the people of the state there should be wider knowledge concerning the Red Cross movement.

National Bank Security

The National Bank is primarily a government institution, exercising authority granted by a federal charter and under the strict supervision of Uncle Sam.

The assets of this Bank are rigidly examined by the National Bank Examiner and subsequently by the Board of Directors, and the loans are carefully scrutinized. Periodical reports of condition are submitted to the Comptroller of the Currency and statements published accordingly.

The large capital and surplus, coupled with the conservative policy of a strong Board of Directors, must appeal to the business man desiring strong and efficient banking connections.

We solicit your business and trust that our relations will be of mutual benefit.

MONTPELIER.

Probation Officer Smith in Charge of 122 Persons, 19 Discharged.

Nineteen of the 143 prisoners from Washington county jail, who are out on probation, were discharged yesterday by Probation Officer Charles A. Smith, being freed either by the court or by pardon from the governor. Two prisoners who were out on probation have been sent back to jail. Minnie Judd, accused of lewdness, and William Morgan, who became intoxicated only a few hours after he was released on probation.

At least 1,000 persons attended the opening of "Flowerland," the bazaar given in city hall by the Montpelier Military band. Booths are numerous about the hall and were well patronized. The band gave a concert before the opening of the event and rendered selections during the evening. The bazaar is to continue through the week.

purpose of the organization being as stated in the papers, "for the advancement of Christianity." The signers are Julia R. Bates, R. J. Parker, Marietta Velle, A. J. Douglas and C. M. Ferrin, all of Essex Junction.

The widow of Rev. Andrew Hull, D. D., a rector of the Episcopal church in this city from 1872 to 1882, died May 15 in Elmira, N. Y.

Charles Oakland Bland and Roberta Gertrude Lewis of Chicago were married Saturday evening by Rev. H. A. Flint, at the rectory. They will live on Barre street.

Hard to Suit.

A little Scotch boy had just returned from a painful interview with the catechizing minister. Meeting another lad on his way to a similar experience, the first boy asked: "An' if he asks ye how many commandments they' are, what will ye say?" "Say?" replied the other boy, with scorn. "Why, ten, of course." "Ten?" cried the first urchin with yet deeper scorn. "Ye'll try him wi' ten, wull ye? I tried him wi' a hummered and he wasna satisfied."—Buffalo Commercial.

JINGLES AND JESTS

A Guess.

They were newsboys and had strayed into the art museum. At the moment they were standing before the Winged Victory of Samothrace. "Say, Bill, what's that?" asked one of them in an awed whisper. "Aw, I dunno," replied the other. "Some saint wid his block knocked off."—Christian Register.

As the Field Broadens.

"What's your boy, Henry, doing now—still writing poetry for that baked-bean concern?" "Oh, no, he's got an easier job than that now. He's the head of the literary department of a real estate firm selling bungalows to prospective bridal couples."—St. Louis Republic.

A Rare Declaration.

"Here's a story about a man who married on a salary of $80 a week." "Well, what of it?" "He's drawing $125 a week now, and declares he is saving as much money, if not more, as when he was getting only the $80."—St. Louis Republic.

The Parting.

"I told him I would not see him again," said the fair girl. "He evidently thinks you mean what you said." "Well, that's no reason why he shouldn't call me up by phone."—Washington Star.

Truthful James.

"Say, boss, can I get off this afternoon about half past two?" "Whose funeral is it to be this time, James?" "Well, to be honest, boss, the way the morning papers have it doped out it looks like it's going to be the home team's again."—St. Louis Republic.

Verification of Deposit Books

Section 25 of No. 158, acts of 1910, of the laws of Vermont, provides that "In the year 1913, and every fifth year thereafter, at such time in the year as the bank commissioner shall designate, the trustees of banks shall call in the deposit books for examination and verification, and cause the same to be examined and verified by some person, other than the treasurer or his clerks, employed for that purpose and approved by said commissioner."

In accordance with this statute, the bank commissioner has designated the month of May for the examination and verification of deposit books. Depositors in Barre banks are, therefore, requested to present their pass books either in person or by mail as early in the month as convenient. Books sent by mail will be returned promptly.
